BRITONS START ANOTHER PUSH

MARSHAL HAIG'S MEN MAKE SUCCESSFUL DRIVE NORTH OF THE ANCRE.

(By the Associated Press)
London, Aug. 21.—The British forces this morning launched an attack on a wide front north of the Ancre river, says an official statement from Field Marshal Haig. Satisfactory progress is being made, the statement adds. Tuesday afternoon the British threw back a strong German attack against the new British positions south and north of the river Scarpe.

Success Attends British Advance.
London, Aug. 21.—The British forces have captured Courcelles, Achiet-le-Petit, and have reached Moyenville and Beaucourt-sur-Ancre in their drive which began this morning north of the Ancre river between Moyenville and Beaucourt-sur-Ancre on a front of about eight and one-half miles, under General Byng, commanding the third army. It is reported in advices from the front that the British have advanced from two to three miles along the entire front. The attack was made without artillery preparation.

British Hit 10,000 Yard Front.
British Army in France, Aug. 21.—Field Marshal Haig this morning launched an offensive on a ten thousand yard front. The high contour between Adinfer and Moyenville was the northern zone of attack and Puisieux-au-Mont was the southern landmark of the front. The enemy has lately been withdrawing here in order to increase the depth of his defense. All German outposts along the important Branoutre Ridge have been attacked by the British. Courcelles and Achiet-le-Petit were also taken by British.

GERMANS RAID FISHING VESSELS

(By the Associated Press)
A Canadian Port, Aug. 21.—The steam trawler Triumph, fitted with two guns and wireless and manned by sixteen Germans from a U-boat which captured her yesterday, is raising the fishing bank off Nova Scotia. Crews of schooners sunk by the Triumph have reached here. The Una P. Saunders, the E. P. Hyatt of Gloucester, Mass., and the Francis J. O'Hara of Boston, are vessels known to have been sunk by the converted fishing trawler.

FRENCH AIRMAN DOWNS 3
PLANES IN 20 SECONDS.
Paris, August 21.—Lieut. Rene Fonck, the famous French aviator who shot down three German airplanes on August 14, as announced officially Sunday, accounted for all three of them in the record breaking time of twenty seconds.

Fonck went out escorted by two patrolling machines. After cruising for ten minutes he surprised four enemy two-seater battle planes flying in Indian file with only a few hundred yards between each pair. The French flyer attacked the first enemy machine with his machine gun. It fell in flames in ten seconds. Later he got his sights on the second machine with the same result. The third dodged sideways before Fonck could take aim and escaped, but by a swift turn of the rudder he dashed at the fourth airplane and sent it down to join the first two.

Lieutenant Fonck, recognized as the greatest French air fighter since Captain Guynemer, is credited with bringing down sixty enemy airplanes. Of these he downed six in one day in the course of two patrols.

A little over a year ago Lieutenant Fonck entered the aerial service as a pilot of an airplane regulating artillery fire. After about twenty days of this service during which he defeated two German planes which had attempted to interfere with his work, he was put into a squadron of pursuit machines. Eight days later he was officially cited as an ace, having destroyed his fifth airplane. A remarkably cool and daring fighter, Fonck is only 23 years old.

A NERVOUS WRECK

From Three Years' Suffering. Says Cardui Made Her Well

Texas City, Tex.—In an interesting statement, Mrs. G. H. Schill, of this town, says: "For three years I suffered untold agony with my head. I was unable to do any of my work."

I just wanted to sleep all the time, for that was the only case I could get, when I was asleep. I became a nervous wreck just from the awful suffering with my head.

I was so nervous that the least noise would make me jump out of my bed. I had no energy, and was unable to do anything. My son, a young boy, had to do all my household duties.

I was not able to do anything until I took Cardui. I took three bottles in all, and it surely cured me of those awful headaches. That has been three years ago, and I know the cure is permanent for I have never had any headache since taking Cardui.

Nothing relieved me until I took Cardui. It did wonders for me."

Try Cardui for your troubles—made from medicinal ingredients recommended in medical books as being of benefit in female troubles, and 40 years of use has proven that the books are right. Begin taking Cardui today.

THE BURY THE HAMMER CLUB.

Brother Plainman made some remarks on superior people. There are some folks, he said, who are always above their surroundings. If you remark that we have a very good looking business district here in Muskogee they snuff superciliously. They say it isn't as good as some town about three times our size. And so it goes on everything.

These people seem to be ashamed of their home town. If they moved to New York or Chicago, they would say it was not up to London or Paris. Wherever they are, they want to give the impression that they have seen a great deal of the world, have high standards, and are superior to their surroundings.

The funny thing about these people is that they do not realize that their assertions of superiority are not taken seriously. As far as civic usefulness goes, they are really very inferior people, as they never do a thing toward public improvement. Muskogee Times-Democrat.

How the kaiser arrested his own mother in his greed for world domination while he is alone with these plans the Devil appears to him and promises conquest of the world in exchange for the kaiser's soul. The agreement is made and signed with blood from the Hun's withered arm. At the Liberty theater next Monday and Tuesday.

FRANCHISE IS ASKED FOR

AMERICAN OIL & REFINING CO.
SEEKS PRIVILEGE TO ENTER THE CITY.

A petition is being circulated asking the City Commissioners to permit a vote on a franchise granting the American Oil & Refining Co., privilege to pipe gas into the city and use the city streets and alleys for the purpose. This company proposes to furnish gas to all residences at the rate of not more than 25 cents per thousand and also to furnish gas for manufacturing purposes. Mr. Kitchell, who is circulating the petition, states that if the franchise is granted the company will furnish the citizens gas at the stipulated price. The petition was presented to the city commissioners at their meeting Tuesday.

WOUNDED MEN BEING REMADE

(By the Associated Press)

Paris, Aug. 21.—(Correspondence of The Associated Press)—"The awkward squad" familiar at the beginning of all citizen armies, has now been supplanted by the "lame" battalion, designed to re-establish the men who have gone through the fire and to fit them for future service.

So successful has the idea of a "lame battalion" been that from 70 to 80 per cent of the soldiers receiving wounds in the legs or suffering from the usual foot and leg maladies of trench war have been restored to full combat strength.

The new course involves instruction of the wounded and weakened soldier in the proper posture of the body and its use in walking, running and riding. Special drills have been devised to overcome the habits into which the invalid soldier has fallen. Instruction is given in the care of the feet while special attention has been given to the foot and leg cases in the hospitals.

Men with specially troublesome feet, weak backs, general bad posture or lack of endurance are sent to the special training battalion where the fully erect, alert position of the body is emphasized. Four companies have been established in the battalion, with programs increasingly difficult so that the schedule of the fourth company is only slightly below that required for full combat fitness.

United States army medical officers report that "experience has shown that from one-third to one-half of the ordinary deformities resulting from gunshot wounds are preventable. Surgeons must free themselves from their tendency to treat the wounds and forget the function; to make a well man but not a working one."

SOLDIERS IN ENGLAND DO LITTLE TRAVELING.

(By the Associated Press)

With American Army in England, August 21.—American officers stationed temporarily in England must make most of their sight seeing trips beyond the lines of their camps on foot.

The temptation of officers and men to visit historic and interesting places near the camps is great, but the scarcity of motor equipment and the restrictions regarding railway travel make short jaunts impossible. American soldiers of the provost guard are at every railway station where there is a sump, with instructions to ask every soldier, whether he be commissioned or not, if he has the necessary permission to travel.

TROOP A-309 U. S.

CAVALRY TRANSFERRED
Word has been received here that Troop A-309 U. S. Cavalry of Ft. Sam Houston has been transferred to Battery A-56th Field Artillery.

Paul E. Harbin of Lula, Okla., is the only Pontotoc county boy in that troop.

From the Enid Eagle we learn that E. E. Mathews, formerly a member of the faculty of East Central Normal and a well known citizen of this county, together with J. S. Armstrong has closed a deal whereby the new firm are owners of one of Enid's large music stores. The many friends of Mr. Mathews in Ada are pleased to learn of the new arrangement and wish for the new firm a large measure of success.

Forty airships are shown at one time. There is nothing fake about this, though nothing can be said where the pictures were made. There is a thrill every moment they are on the screen, and they figure prominently for it is through them the Hun ruler is made prisoner and taken before General Pershing. To Hell with the Kaiser. Liberty Theater next Monday and Tuesday.

W. E. Webb of the Kansas City Bridge Co., who has the contract for the construction of the Canadian bridge, was in the city Tuesday. He reports work on the bridge progressing nicely, and that the work will be completed by October 1. Some delay had been occasioned through incorrect soundings, but all short pilings have been secured and replaced.

Then one sweet note of the voice of Frieda Hempel or one ripple of melody from the bow of Albert Spalding would put your soul in harmony with the world.

Music—real music—is one of life's greatest boons. Edison music is real music, because the New Edison does not merely reproduce, it recreates. One never tires of their New Edison, the novelty never wears off, because there is no novelty to wear off. It is not just another "talking machine." It is decidedly different. ## ADA CITIZEN GOES TO CHECOTAH BANK

W. T. Miller will go to Checotah this week where he will be connected with the First National bank of that place. Mr. Miller was with that bank for several years.

In discussing the matter this morning Mr. Miller, who was recently a candidate for state treasurer, stated that he had always advised young men who held good positions not to cut loose from them and seek office. He, however, failed to follow the line of action he had prescribed for his friends and ran for a state office. Mr. Miller said nobody need ever tell him again, politically speaking, to "come in, the water's fine."

POTATO CROP FLOURISHES IN BUCKINGHAM GARDENS

(By the Associated Press)
London, Aug. 21.—The 1918 potato crop in Victoria gardens in front of Buckingham Palace promise to be a great success. The potatoes are in beds which until 1917 were devoted to flowers on both sides of The Mall where it reaches the Palace grounds entrance.

King George and Queen Mary both have taken much interest in them. The Queen recently inspected the "potato-patch" with John Robert Clynes, parliamentary secretary of the ministry of food, who had been a guest at the palace.

She was Mrs. Charles Woodhouse, daughter of Field Marshal Sir John Burgoyne and granddaughter of General John Burgoyne of American history.

Vineland, N. J.—"I am a schoolboy, 17 years of age, and typhoid fever left me weak and debilitated, so I had to stay out of school three months—my doctor prescribed Vinol. It has built up my strength and now I am feeling fine."—S. E. Bunce.

The reason Vinol was so successful in this boy's case, is because it contains beef and cod liver peptones, iron and manganese peptones and glycerophosphates, the very elements needed to build up a weakened, run-down system, make rich, red blood and create strength.—Gwin & Mays Drug Co., and Druggists Everywhere.

DADDY'S EVENING FAIRY TALE

BY MARY GRAYSON DOWDER

THE SEALS.

"We have the same Mr. Seal whom we share between us," said Mrs. Sally Seal, "but our little baby seals are our own."

"That is right," said Mrs. Susan Seal. "In fact our Mr. Seal is shared by about one hundred Mrs. Seals. We don't care to have a mate apiece—that's foolish for we are used to sharing a Mr. Seal and so we think it's all right that way."

"I wouldn't like to share the babies, though," said Mrs. Sally Seal.

"Neither would I," said Mrs. Susan Seal. "You see how nice everything is. Nothing happens which we don't like, and everything happens which we like."

"It's a nice world," said Mrs. Sally Seal.

"My babies were born on this very beach," said Mrs. Susan Seal, "and I was so interested in them that from the time I came up on this beach until four weeks or more had gone by I didn't have a thing to eat. Somehow I didn't think of food. I was so interested in the children and everything around me."

"I didn't have anything to eat for about six weeks, I think," said Mrs. Sally Seal. "The beach is so interesting and when I come to it I like to stay for quite awhile. But then I began to grow restless and I knew the children wanted to be fed, so I went back and forth, back and forth."

"The same as I did," said Mrs. Susan Seal. "And I do believe that all the other seal mothers did the same. Do you know that there is something about us which puzzles people?"

"I didn't know it," said Mrs. Sally Seal.

"Would you like to hear about it?" asked Mrs. Susan Seal.

"I would, indeed," said Mrs. Sally Seal. "Can you tell me? Do you know what it is?"

"I do," said Mrs. Susan Seal, "and I will tell you about it."

"That is good of you," said Mrs. Sally Seal. And they both settled themselves on the beach, after they had had a little bite of fish for their luncheon and then Mrs. Susan Seal began her story.

"People," she said, "are very much puzzled because the Seal children always know their babies. They think it is strange."

"Don't mothers know their babies?" asked Mrs. Sally Seal.

"Yes, I believe they do," said Mrs. Susan Seal. "In fact I am sure they do. I have never heard anything different and in fact I am positive they always do."

"Then why do they think it is strange that we should know our own babies?" asked Mrs. Sally Seal.

"Because, you know," said Mrs. Susan Seal, "there are so many of us and such lots and lots of babies. To every Mr. Seal there are about a hundred Mrs. Seals and every one of those Mrs. Seals, of course, has her own little family. So there are just lots and lots of children around the beach. It's different, you see, from the way people live. Different mothers live in different homes so that the children don't get mixed up so easily."

"They think because there are so many children along the beach that they're bound to get mixed up, and that because the children all look alike to them they must look alike to us."

"Well, did I ever?" exclaimed Mrs. Sally Seal.

"Of course, when the little dears come around we love and look after our own; we don't bother about the other mother's family. And the seals find their own mothers, the little pets."

"Yes," continued Mrs. Susan Seal, "we know our darlings and they know us, and if people think it is strange all I can say is that I think it is strange for them to think such things."

"Our only trouble in life is the fear of the whale which tries to kill us—but oh, for the most part we're very, very happy."

And Mrs. Sally Seal agreed. "Yes, we're playful and we're good swimmers. We can dive and leap and almost dance. All seals, until they're four or five years old, are just full of frolics and fun. But though we play and have a good time we always know our little children and can pick them out, even though there are thousands of seals on the beach."

proved now that the Germans were planning to provoke our conflict with the Bolsheviks and to destroy us piecemeal with the aid of the armed prisoners of war.

"Under such circumstances we began our pilgrimage east. I was in the first train, (there were then eighty trains of us), which was to prepare the way. We determined to leave Russia without a conflict. Notwithstanding the fact that we kept our word, that we surrendered all arms with the exception of the few necessary, our progress was hindered and unending negotiations had to be repeated in every seat of a local Soviet. We were threatened by machine guns, by cannon, but we patiently stood it all, although the Bolshevik Red Guard could have been disbanded by a few of our volunteers. After fifty-seven days of such tire-some travel our first train arrived in Vladivostok where we were enthusiastically received by the Allied units stationed there.

"When the Germans saw that we, notwithstanding all their intrigue, were nearing Vladivostok, they exercised a direct pressure on Lenin and Trotsky; for the thing that were later committed by the Soviets, cannot any further be explained away by ignorance. The trains were stopped at different stations so that they finally were separated by a distance of over 50 miles from one another. Provoking incidents of all kinds were the order of the day. The arming of the German and Magyar prisoners was begun on a large scale. One of the orders of Tschitcherine, the Bolshevik foreign minister, reads: "Dispatch all German and Magyar prisoners out of Siberia, stop the Czechoslovaks." Three members of our National Council who were sent to Moscow for an explanation of the stopping of our trains, were arrested. At the same time our trains were attacked in different stations by the Soviet troops, formed mostly of German and Magyar prisoners.

"I will recall the Irkutsk incident. Our train—about 400 men, armed with ten rifles and 20 hand grenades, was surrounded by a few thousand Red Guards armed with machine-guns and cannons. Their commander gave our men ten minutes to surrender their arms, or be shot. According to their habit, ours began negotiations. Suddenly there was heard the German command, "Schlesien!" and the Red Guards began firing at the train. Our men jumped out of the train, and in five minutes all the machine guns were in their possession, the Russian Bolsheviks disarmed and all the German and Magyars done away with.

"The Siberian government which resides in Irkutsk and which, as it appeared later, ordered this attack, can thank only the intervention of the American and French Consuls that it was not destroyed by our rightly embittered volunteers.

"To what extremes our loyalty was carried, is shown by the fact, that although perfidiously attacked, and although we disarmed the Red Guard in Irkutsk, we still began negotiations, with the result that we surrendered all our arms, on the condition that all German and Magyar prisoners would be disarmed and disbanded, and that we would be allowed to proceed unmolested. The Siberian Government guaranteed us unmolested passage, and, taught by bitter experience that it was dangerous to attack even unarmed Czechoslovaks, let us proceed to Vladivostok. True, this concerned only the trains in the vicinity of Irkutsk; the trains west of Irkutsk were under the orders of Moscow—attacked in the same manner, but always with Bolsheviks were disarmed.

"The arrest of the members of our National Council, took place immediately before these treacherous attacks. Then, thousands of armed German and Magyars in the vicinity of Omsk, Krasnoyarsk and Chita, forced our army between Volga and Irkutsk to take the Siberian administration into their hands, (toward the end of June.) But even at this stage we were trying to enter into negotiations with Moscow. But Moscow, i. e., Lenin and Trotsky, proclaimed us murderers and began mobilization against us. Under these circumstances our troops were forced to take possession of the bridges over the Volga.

"I must mention the fact that our defense which, as said, was necessitated by treacherous attacks and everywhere resulted in the disarmament of the Bolsheviks, was joyfully greeted by the majority of the Russian population. Anti-Bolsheviks took advantage of the situation and overthrew the Soviets. We can not interfere with their internal affairs even after the open conflict. We only disarmed those who attacked us, to make repetition of attacks impossible.

"The Germans were trying to spread rumors that our volunteers committed brutalities during these battles. That is not true. The facts are this: Russian-Bolsheviks, taken by our troops, were disarmed and sent home, but the Magyars and German prisoners, taken with arms in hand, were killed. That was made known to them beforehand. The Austrians hanged all our wounded whom they captured on the Italian front, and they attacked one of our trains of wounded in Siberia. Four years of a struggle for life have taught us to be on guard. We did no harm to German or Magyar prisoners who did not oppose us although they were our enemies; we could have killed thousands and thousands of them, but we allowed them to leave Siberia in peace, if they desired to go home. When, however, they treacherously attacked us, they were of necessity made harmless. We made an official announcement that every German and Magyar caught by us with arms in hand, would be given no quarter. On the contrary we could cite many instances of unprovoked brutalities committed on our wounded by the Germans, and especially, Magyar prisoners.

"In Siberia there are today some hundred thousand German and Magyar prisoners, a great number of whom are armed. It is these men who offer considerable resistance to our army—the Russian-Bolsheviks surrender after the first shot. The Bolsheviks gave a sufficient

STORY OF THE CZECHO-SLOVAKS

AMAZING ADVENTURES OF THE FORCES ACROSS RUSSIA AND SIBERIA.

(By the Associated Press)

Washington, Aug. 21.—Captain Vladimir S. Hurban, an officer in the Czechoslovak army which Japan and the United States have decided to aid in Siberia has come to Washington from Vladivostok to make a report to Professor Masaryk, Commander-in-Chief of the Czechoslovak army and president of the National Council. Captain Hurban has given to The Associated Press his story of the experiences of the Czechoslovaks from the time the army of escaped prisoners fought their way eastward from Ukraine.

"The history of the origin of our army, of its operations on the Russian front, and its march around the world to the French front will some day read like a fantastic romance, before which the imagination fades into the prosaic," he said.

"Our army in Russia was organized from Czech and Slovak prisoners of war under almost insurmountable difficulties. We were co-operating with the Russian army, and since the summer, 1917, were practically the only army on the Russian front, capable of any military action in the proper sense of the word. In July, 1917, during the first revolutionary offensive under Kerensky it was only our army that really attacked and advanced.

"When the Bolshevik Soviet government signed the peace treaty at the beginning of March, our army, of about 50,000 men, was in Ukraine, near Kiev. The former Ukrainian government, to escape the Bolsheviks threw themselves into the arms of the Germans and called for German help. When the German and Austrian armies began their advance into Ukraine, the position of our army was almost desperate. We were in a state which had concluded peace, in which, however, the Germans were advancing and occupying large territories without resistance. The Red Guards of the Soviets did not represent any real military power.

"The Germans advanced against us in overwhelming numbers and there was danger that we would be surrounded. Our rear was not covered and the Germans were liable to attack us there. We had no lines of communication behind us, no stores of materials and no reserves; everywhere there was disorganization and anarchy, and the Bolshevik Red Guards seized the locomotives and were fleeing east in panic.

"Under these circumstances Emperor Charles sent us a special envoy with the promise, that if we would disarm, we would be amnestied and our lands would receive autonomy. We answered that we would not negotiate with the Austrian Emperor.

"As we could not hold a front, we began to retreat to the East. Already then in agreement with the Allies, (our army had been proclaimed a part of the Czechoslovak army on the Western front, and thus allied with the French army) it was decided to transport our army over Siberia and America to France. We began the difficult retreat from Kiev. The Germans in an overwhelming force were trying to prevent our escape. About a hundred miles behind us they seized the important railroad junction at Bachmac, which we were obliged to pass in our trains on our retreat to the East.

"When we arrived at Bachmac the Germans were already waiting for us. There began a battle lasting four days, in which they were badly defeated, and which enabled us to get our trains through. The commander of the German detachment offered us a 48 hours' truce, which we accepted for our duty was to leave Ukraine; but the truce was canceled by the German chief commander, Linsangan, but too late; our trains had already got away. We lost altogether about 600 men in dead, wounded and unaccountable, while we buried 2,000 Germans in only one day.

"In this manner we escaped from Ukraine. Our relations with the Bolsheviks were still good. We refrained from meddling with Russian internal affairs and we tried to come to an agreement with the Bolshevik Government with respect to our departure, or passage through Russia. But already, signs were visible that the Bolsheviks; either under German influence or because we then represented the only real power in Russia; would try to put obstacles in our way. It would have sufficed to order one of our regiments (our army was then in march near Moscow) to take Moscow, and in half a day there would have been no Bolshevik Government; for then we were well armed, having taken from the front everything we could carry, to prevent it from falling into the hands of the Germans. Each of our regiments had 200 to 300 machine guns and nobody in Russia, to say nothing of Moscow, could have at all contemplated an attempt at opposition. Moscow, moreover, would have received us with open arms. But we were determined to leave as the arm of a friendly brother nation, with an army which in spite of all bad experiences, wished for Russia the strengthening of real democracy. Although we could not sympathize with the Bolshevik Government, we as guests refrained from all action against it, and remained absolutely loyal to it.

"To prove indisputably our loyalty we turned over to the Bolsheviks everything, all our arms, with the exception of a few rifles which we kept for our, so to say, personal safety (10 rifles for each 100 men). The equipment we turned over to the Bolsheviks, including arms, horses, automobiles, airplanes, etc., was worth more than 1,000,000,000 rubles, and it was legally in our position, for we took it away from the Germans, to whom it had been abandoned by the fleeing Bolsheviks. This transfer of equipment was of course preceded by an agreement made between us and the Moscow Government, by which we were guaranteed unmolested passage through Siberia, to which the government pledged to give its unconditional support.

"Already there were signs that the Germans were beginning to be uneasy about our movement. Today we have documentary evidence to the fact that in March the Germans considered our progress as native adventure, which soon would end in failure. When they saw, however, that the "impossibility" as they called it, was becoming a reality, they began to do their best to frustrate our efforts, and organized an army against us. As I had said, the Bolsheviks, though not exceptionally friendly to us, restrained so far from all direct action against us. Their only desire in that respect, to which they devoted much money, was to persuade our volunteers to join their Red Guard. We did practically nothing to oppose it, but we knew our men. Our people are too well educated politically and in every other way, to be carried away by the methods of Lenin and Trotsky.

"More dangerous was the work of German agents who, under the mask of internationalism found their way into the Soviets. In every Soviet there was a German who exercised a great influence over all its members.

"Soon there came the news that the German and the Magyar prisoners of war were organizing in Siberia and were being armed by the Bolsheviks under the pretense that they were going to fight against "World Imperialism." We have

Good Alibi for the Bee.

That bees injure fruit is a common belief in some quarters, but investigations recently carried out in Italy prove it to be without foundation. Bees cannot perforate the skin of fruit, and the damage attributed to them is really due to birds, wind, hail, hornets, wasps and certain other insects. Bees are, in fact, of much benefit to the orchardist, because they effect the cross-pollination of fruit trees.—Popular Science Monthly.

Testing Pleurisy With Coins.

A novel method of diagnosing pleurisy is described by P. Lereboullet in the Paris Medical Journal. The examiner applies his ear to the patient's chest, closing his other ear, while coins are clinked at the patient's back. The sound of the coins coming through a healthy, normally aerated lung seems distant and dull, while through an affected lung, through solid or homogeneous tissue a clear, silvery metallic ring is heard.

"A. MAXWELL"

By MISS KATHERINE HARRING.

Sibyl Kendall and her chum, Marjorie Russell, were walking arm in arm down the street leading away from the college, which both attended as day pupils.

"Now, Sib, please tell me what's on your mind—you've been terribly sober all day," exclaimed Marjorie.

"Well, I guess you'd be sober if some child you didn't know was coming to your house to visit just at graduation time. It's this way. As I was leaving for school this morning I heard mother tell dad that she had received a letter from one of her schoolday chums, Mrs. Maxwell, whose daughter Arline has just completed her sophomore year at high school and, as a reward for good scholarship, her mother is going to send her somewhere on a vacation. That much didn't interest me any, and I started out on the porch. I saw it was sprinkling, so went back into the hall for my umbrella, overhearing mother say 'May be here some time during the week of Sibyl's graduation.' Here Sibyl paused, but her expression betrayed the disgust which she could not put into words.

"Dreadful!" ejaculated Marjorie. "She'll have to go to all the dances and receptions, and where will you find a boy to go with her?"

The days passed along swiftly, filled with many happy hours of preparing for graduation—hours at the dressmaker's, milliner's and motoring trips to big city department stores.

The first big event of the week, the senior ball, came on a Tuesday evening, and Tuesday afternoon found Sibyl at home, resting for the great event. The telephone jangled sharply, and Sibyl moved to answer. After a few minutes' conversation she returned, throwing herself dejectedly into her chair.

"Oh, dear," she sobbed. "Now I can't go to the dance. Those dreadful, inconsiderate people!"

It so happened that Sibyl was to attend the dance with Marjorie Russell's sailor brother, who was home on a short furlough, but a telegram just received by him sent him hurrying to the telephone to inform Sibyl that he must report at his ship at nine the next morning, thus necessitating his leaving at once.

The telephone rang again. Western Union wished to dictate a telegram for her father, and as he was out riding, Sibyl took the message on paper, as follows: "Will arrive on 4:30 express. See you at station. A. Maxwell."

"Oh, it never rains but it pours!" sighed Sibyl as she wearily glanced at the clock. "Four o'clock, and nobody at home to meet the child. That means Miss Sibyl Kendall will have the pleasant task."

Soon she was faultily dressed in a light summer sport suit and spinning swiftly down Main street in her little roadster. Sibyl drew up at the station as the train came to a stop. No young girl appeared to loiter around the station. Sibyl jumped from the roadster and went into the station, then started around on the outside, vowing to at least do her duty in locating the girl.

Hurrying around the last corner, she ran squarely into someone coming in the opposite direction. "Goodness!" exclaimed a masculine and a feminine voice together.

Sibyl recovered herself at once and glancing up looked into the twinkling brown eyes she had never seen. Without a word she swiftly took in the trim cap, broad khaki shoulders and silver bar of a first lieutenant and then started as he quickly said, "Why, you look just like your picture, Miss Kendall."

It was indeed a puzzled Sibyl that looked into the handsome face. "And where did you see my picture?" she said faintly.

"Why, your mother sent one of your graduation pictures to my mother. It was a dandy picture, too."

"Who are you, anyway?" Sibyl asked abruptly.

"What! Do you mean to say you came down here to meet me and now don't know who I am?"—and his eyes twinkled even merrier than at first.

"I came down here to meet Arline Maxwell," said Sibyl with dignity.

"No, you didn't really. You came to meet Arthur Maxwell—and here I am—at your service," and the young officer made a comical bow.

Just then a big touring car drew up and Mr. and Mrs. Kendall rushed up to the two young people.

"We just happened to read the telegram Sibyl left on the telephone desk so we came at once—because, you see, we didn't tell Sibyl you might come as we wanted to surprise her; and on the other hand save her from disappointment if you were called away before you were able to visit us," hurriedly stated Mrs. Kendall to Arthur Maxwell.

Sibyl began to see a light in the distance. Finally it fully dawned on her that she had not heard the whole of her mother's story to her father several weeks before, and she had allowed her imagination to run too far, and it wasn't Arline Maxwell that was coming the week of her graduation, but Arline's brother, on his way to camp.

Upon her arrival home, Sibyl was called to the telephone to receive the sympathies of Marjorie Russell, and that young lady could not understand why Sibyl so easily stated that, "Yes, I'm going just the same and will bring A. Maxwell. I'm sure I'll have a wonderful time."

RATES ON COTTON REMAIN UNCHANGED.

(By the Associated Press)

Washington, August 21.—Existing cotton freight rates where cotton is shipped in any quantity will be continued this year, the railroad administration announced today.

Universal Electricity.

The increasing use of electricity for household as well as business purposes has led to the prediction of universal water. The cost will be reduced to a minimum and it will be as unheard of to charge even a stranger for a nominal amount of electricity as to charge a water tax to the person who asks for a drink.

Always Have Danger Signal.

From the beginning of railroads in Great Britain a red necktie has been part of the uniform of trainmen and station employees. The object was that every railroad servant might have always something at hand to improvise into a danger signal when a red flag was not available.

Naturally.

A new baby sister arrived at Freddie's house. Next day at kindergarten the teacher asked him what they were going to name his new little sister. Freddie thought deeply a minute and then exclaimed: "Oh, we're going to name it Mrs. Throckmorton after my mother."

Food Value of Fish.

The high worth of fish as a food is strongly upheld by the Journal of the American Medical Association, noting that fish must be better cared for than some other forms of animal food, but concluding "it is no just criticism of fish to say that they may be harmful unless properly cared for."

Disillusionment.

"When you see a cuffed puffball rise up and pick at dem crinkly side whiskers o' his'n and smooze down dat fancy vest you am amazed at de ponderosity o' de spectacle," said old Brother Buckaloo. "But when you listens to his transplavication you finds dat when you beheld dem whiskers and dat vest you seed it all. Ain't dat bout so, Brudder Jurdan?"—Kansas City Star.

Could Not Live Without Birds.

The value of birds to man is based principally on their feeding habits. Their greatest help is through their activity in eating harmful insects, their eggs and larvae. Without this constant aid, we would be powerless to protect our trees and crops from the ravages of caterpillars, beetles, borers and such creatures.

Savages Fond of the Banjo.

The banjo, in its primitive form, is found in use today by savage tribes in equatorial Africa. It is a calabash or half a one, with strings of some sort across it, and is perhaps the most important instrument of music at cannibal feasts and on other joyous social occasions.
